Winning Combination

Winchester High School has always had a winning tradition and this past year was no exception. The students were offered a wide array of classes and extracurricular activities, and each in their own way created a positive spirit and attitude. Together, they formed a Winning Combination. The year began with the introduction of a new rotating schedule. Although it had its share of criticism, the schedule turned out to be a phenomenal success, breathing new life into the once dull and monotonous daily routine. The students themselves were an integral part of the winning combination. Their enthusiasm and willingness to help each other out created a sense of comradery. The interscholastic athletic program was another important facet of the combination. Each day, various teams competed with other towns and cities to assert their superiority. WHS holds league and state titles in almost every conceivable sport, each a token of its winning character. Right alongside athletics were several awareness groups. SADD, Reaction, Drug and Alcohol, Amnesty International and the Peer Counseling group each did their best to create positive attitudes in the student body. The musical and drama groups also contributed by bringing an artistic flair to the winning combination. The Student Union, SAC, RSAC, and Red and Black voiced the opinions of the students while Yearbook '91 recorded it all. If what we had is not a winning combination, what is?

Winning Activities

Tests. Papers. Double period lectures (an hour and fifty minutes of note taking!). College applications. These are but a few of the many sources of stress which plagued students during the past school year. Many students found themselves in despair, and decided that they needed a break in their lives from the routine of classes and homework. They needed time to spend with other people devoid of any school related pressure. Many found some relief (and for some, joy) in one or more of the various extracurricular activities which Winchester High School offers. Every activity was open to any student who was interested in joining. From Student Union to Spanish Club to Curtain and Cue to the new Academic Decathlon, students were found bustling about, adding their spirit and energy to the group, while at the same time enjoying themselves. Dances were another escape in which many students devoted their time. Semis, Proms and all-school dances were the scenes for much needed relaxation. Whatever the time or place, there was bound to have been people trying to find a way to have some kind of fun while trying to deal with the pressures of school.

WASTING AWAY IN MARGARITAVILLE

"Wasting away again in Margaritaville"
Kelley Campbell

On June 8, an event took place that will long be remembered by many. "The junior prom was by far the best dance I've been to," commented one student. The bright and cheerful theme of Margaritaville lifted the spirits of many students who needed to wind down after a stressful month filled with SAT's, achievement tests and AP exams. The town hall never looked better as pink, yellow, and green streamers and balloons, palm trees, and lights transformed it into a fantasy land.

Upon arrival at Margaritaville, many of the couples had pictures taken, for it wouldn't be long before jackets would be taken off, shoes thrown off to the side, bow ties loosened and shirt sleeves rolled. The guys came dressed in traditional tuxedos varying in style from plaid to paisley to polka dot bow ties and cummerbunds. Some even dressed in shorts. The girls all wore bright and flowered dresses with shoes dyed to match. Many wore strapless dresses with a short bubble, while others wore more formal, long gowns.

The DJ provided a wide range of music to suit all tastes. It was accompanied by fog and an array of bright, colorful lights. Whether doing the "Party Train", whooping to the beat of MC Hammer, or "Getting in the Groove" with Madonna, everyone seemed to be having the time of their lives. Some even got so crazy as to jump onto the stage to dance to the popular classic, "That's What I Like About You". The DJ knew just when to slow things down with everyone's favorites, "Wonderful Tonight", "Somebody", and "In Your Eyes".

Deanna Dellachoppa and Dave Westner let loose on the dance floor at the Junior Prom.

Mark Whelan, Doug Jordan and Joe Gordon leave their dates behind for a moment of male bonding.

As the night progressed, the decorations that the prom committee had worked long hours on began to descend into the clutches of the exuberant crowd. Many took time out from dancing to sit outside or get something to eat. The food table stretched from one end of the back hall to the other, filled with pastries of all kinds. However, the main attraction was the fountain that spurted out punch. Many people seemed fascinated by it and watched it in utter amazement.

As 11:00 PM rolled around, people reluctantly began to depart, headed for their post-prom activities. Many felt saddened that after all the anticipation and preparation, it was over. Perhaps the junior prom is now in the past, but the memories of the night in "Margaritaville" will remain for years to come. The prom had ended, but the celebration had only just begun!

“Grease” Lightning Hits Winchester High

“THE LIGHTS ARE WARMED AND COLORED”

“Enjoyed Improvisations”

- Chris Powers

Lizzie Borden took an axe and gave her mother 40 whacks when she saw what she had done she gave her father 41.

The controversy over Lizzie Borden has spanned the decades. During the fall, WHS took it upon itself to examine this dilemma. A group of eight brilliant actors and actresses, Sidney Sawyer, Deanna Dellacioppa, Allen Park, Phil Obbard, Susie Muserve, Christi VanAken, Stacey Smith, and Michele Ronayne paved the way led by director Jan Lacey and backed by an out of this world production crew.

Over seventy students tried out for the spring musical, Grease. Auditions focused on singing and dancing ability and on dramatic reading. The musicals are an outstanding tradition at Winchester High School. This year was no exception. An array of talent, including Nat Cooper as Danny and Susie Meserve as Sandy made this year's production an outstanding success.

Grease!!

Students and faculty members have always enjoyed being a part of Winchester High's annual spring musical. But during the fall of the past year, it looked as if there might not be a musical because of budget cuts and the lack of a director. Students waited in anticipation as the administration went through the process of finding a qualified director. Luckily, the new Audio/Visual Guy Tom Grosvenor stepped forward, offered his expertise, and was chosen to take the reins of the musical. "Grease" was chosen as the 1991 spring musical, and tryouts were held right after the holiday vacation. Within a couple of weeks, the cast list was finalized. The cast was very talented and everyone had high hopes of a success.

It was not a usual day at WHS. Students from each class dressed to fit their assigned theme ranging from "Rebels without a cause", to Evening Wear. Most of the students took part and attended the rally during the last period of 1990. The students sat with their classes to be judged by a panel of teachers. From the freshmen class, Kate Murphy's jubilation lit up the gym. Sophomore Tara Juwa's sleeping attire woke up the school. The junior class was represented by the tackiest: none other than Campbell Foster. But of course, the senior class dominated the rally, led by Tom Russo's sexy legs and mink shawl.

MARCHING TO A WINNING BEAT

Senior drum major, Kristen Herlihy, conducts the band

Some of us WHS students have never ventured over into that "other" wing of the school, except maybe on our way to the Gym. Sometimes, while strolling by, a bold march can be heard emanating from the Band Room. Or maybe it's "Sesame Street", or the "Loveboat".

The Winchester High School Band can be caught practicing fifth period, everyday. The Band, conducted and led by Ms. Miller, a respected and loved band director, worked especially hard in the beginning of this year to support our football team in the Division 2 Superbowl. (YAY!) Being out on the field at 6:30 AM nearly every morning for weeks before the Superbowl was not easy. The work was rewarded, however, by a spectacular, (and fun) performance in Foxboro, including guest stars Kermit, Cookie Monster (Ms. Miller), and Big Bird (Jon Racek). Several students volunteered from the McCall Middle School to hold up the "ABC's" for "Sesame Street" and the "Muppet Show"

The bold, brassy sound of the band was due to Ms. Miller's idea to convert willing woodwind players into trumpet players to add a powerful punch to the sound.

The hardest thing about the Superbowl show, (besides the early mornings) was that in one month the music department's winter concert had been scheduled one month away, and the band hadn't had the time to practice anything except for the Superbowl music. The challenge was met, (through a lot of hard work) and by the time the concert arrived, the Band had mastered the George Washington Bicentennial March, a tricky piece because of its fast tempo. The performance was awarded with a large applause from the impressed audience.

Playing with pride, Pattie Williams and Julie Buchanan.

Three helpful McCall students hold up the ABC's.

Drill Instructors

A new position was added to the WHS marching band this year. To help out the drum majors and band director, are the all new Drill Instructors. Sophomore Patty Cummings and Freshman Derek Meehan, the two new Drill Instructors helped out by assisting in teaching the drills during marching band season, running errands, and being trained to be future drum majors. The two of them even had a hand at conducting the band. The next time you're at a football game, just look for the two band members wearing fluffy white plumes that rise above all the rest.

R ed and Black

The Red and Black was a great value to the high school. Not only did it offer journalistic experience to students, it was a forum for growth of opinion writing and working through the media. It also allowed students to experience first hand the business and layout aspects of a newspaper. It also stresses the realities of deadlines!

Mr. Benton advised the paper and helped to raise it to first place standing in competition. The reorganization of the staff the past year brought in a co-editorship that delegated responsibilities to heads of the various sections of the paper, sections such as Girls' and Boys' Sports, School and Town Views, features, and of course the opinion articles. Working for the Red and Black was a rewarding full-time commitment that Mr. Benton and the staff enjoyed being a part of.

The paper served the school as a way to get information about the school and as a way to understand more about how events affect the school environment. The writers on the staff worked to learn how to write honestly and objectively in order to inform the student body of affairs that affect them personally.

Curtain and Cue      Creative Writing Club

In Lacey, Amy Berry, and Paulie arclay laugh at Alan Park's latest joke.

rica Malone can't help but laugh at the ntics of her fellow club members.

"Curtain and Cue is great because it lets people who don't normally act in a play get a chance to have fun and feel comfortable acting in a social atmosphere." Curtain and Cue was a supporter of the art of the theater. It was social, but also helped students overcome the fear of acting. The club used improvisational games and acting exercises to accustom the student to the world of the theater.

Advisor Jan Lacy predicted a bright future for the club, suggesting it would grow and become a club of all media. She said, "I hope we can expand on our knowledge and acquaintance with theater arts and diversify into other media, such as video." Jan's enthusiasm for the club was outstanding, and her efforts proved to be inspiring.

Susie Meserve felt that being an officer was neat because she got to see all the other members of the club work on their own acting and get excited by the theater.

Curtain and Cue also helped to support the plays that ran in the fall and the spring. Because they helped to supply the backstage and technical members, many of the people in the club got a crack at the interesting "behind the scenes" realm of the theater.

One of Curtain and Cue's annual events was the One Act Play Night, in which the members had a chance to direct, act in, and produce their very own one-act plays for an audience of members and interested public.

Curtain and Cue created an atmosphere of learning and fun that offered students an awareness of acting that is not always present in a school or society.

-Alison Hoffnagle

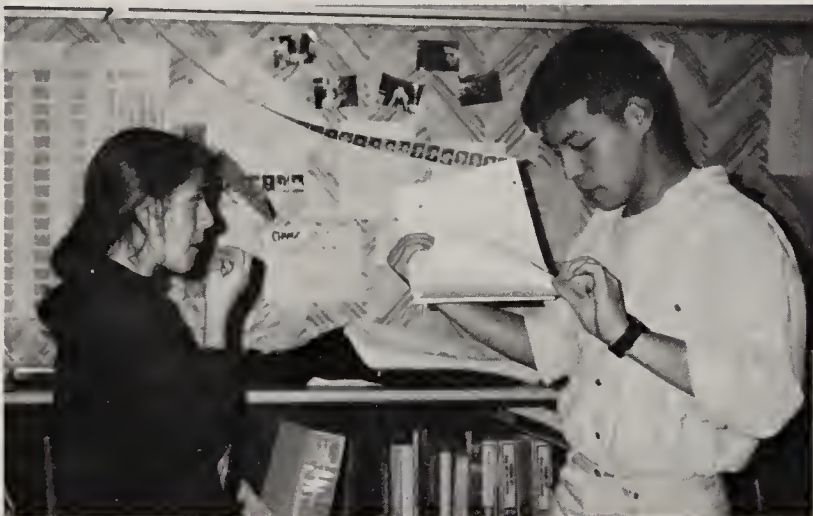

The Creative Writing Club was a unique organization that, although not highly publicized, was an incredible asset to the atmosphere of the high school. The club was advised by Mrs. Howard and focused much of its attention on working with students' imagination. Twice a year the club put out a magazine called The Labyrinth. The magazine contained original works of poems, stories, and works of art. Of course, The Labyrinth was not limited to club members. Space was always available for the works of non-members.

The club seemed more organized than some of the others in the high school, with regular meetings on Tuesday afternoons which each lasted about an hour. At the meetings, the members read their pieces and the group talked about them, giving both support and constructive criticism. However it was not necessary for members to read their pieces if they did not want to; a key advantage to insecure students.

As the leading senior of the group, Kevin Lin states, "It's cheaper than the yearbook and healthier than school lunches."

-Alison Hoffnagle

What ARE we doing ??

What does a yearbook mean to you? Pages and pages of pictures of you and your friends? Maybe, but to the 1991 Yearbook Staff, it meant a year trapped in the ice of Circle 9 with Ugolino and Ruggieri. But with the help of Mike and his key ring, we escaped. Every yearbook staff needs its own sex god - and William Lee was our MAN. TETRIS. Leah, the Queen of layout, saved the disorganized mob of workers from utter destruction. Monica reminded us that we all have friends forever. Chrissy and Nicole developed sweataphobia and Lisa memorized her ABC's. Michael and William enjoyed mud wrestling in between dwarf tossing, while Jen and Elizabeth refuted Einstein's Theory of Relativity. Marybeth and Michelle always found something to do. It's a bird! No, it's a plane! It's...It's... Gretchen! Our blue ribbon editor! Thanks to her and the rest of the yearbook staff, the 1990-1991 yearbook is done, finito, complete, ended, terminated. Now we're out of here like a bald guy!

Winning Sports

Winchester High School takes great pride in its athletic program. WHS has traditionally been a very competitive school, capturing a variety of league and state championships. This past school year, each Winchester team performed up to these standards. Old records were broken, titles were won, and spirits were high. Of course, dedication and hard work were keys to success. Athletes trained in several hours of practice each day in order to reach the height of their potential. Players from around the school of varying skill levels played on each team, combining their talents and contributing to the team effort. Systematically, the skills honed in training were shown off during competition. But one must not forget that for an athlete to compete, he or she must also do well academically. This winning combination of diverse, dedicated, and intelligent people gave each team the ability and the desire to achieve. Each athlete represented the high school as it truly is: a place for great achievement.

-Mike Aleo

GIRLS' SOCCER:

By the first game of the season, they were ranked number one in New England. At the beginning of October, they were ranked second in the nation. Only two weeks later, the WHS Varsity Girls soccer team became the number one team in the nation. Very few questioned whether or not they deserved these honors.

Perhaps, due to the esteemed history of the team, the standings were somewhat expected. Perhaps their success was expected because of the team's great depth ranging from sophomores to seniors. But most likely it was due to the sheer beauty with which the talented squad wiped the opposing teams off the field.

They entered the state tournament as Middlesex League Champs with a perfect record. They had scored 110 goals while being scored against only six times. Fans constantly supported the team, claiming, "They are simply the best!" Everyone believed that they would capture the state title and no one tried to refute their national ranking.

Four weeks later, the WHS Varsity Girls soccer team proved that they were number one by defeating Springfield Cathedral, two goals to none, in the state finals. They racked up 23 goals in six tourney games and were scored against only once. This gave a season total of seven goals against and 133 goals for in 24 victorious games.

Many wonder if there was a team out there that could have beaten this mighty squad. These same people doubt it. They were "simply the best."

-Kathryn Ford

Julie Struthers, Liz Kelly, Katherine Doherty, Cheri Frost, Katie Branley, and captain Cortney Perkins relax before practice.

All-American Jen Gilpatric blasts a shot from midfield. Jen was a important part of the girls' success in the 1990 season.

NATIONAL CHAMPS!!

Senior captain Cortney Perkins, boots the ball upfield. Cortney was a corner stone of the team and was a great defensive player.

Renee Bussell gives Liz Kelly a high five. Liz Kelly led the league in scoring with Renee in a close second.

Team captain Emily Lewis, discusses the game plan quickly with coach Scanlon. Emily was consistently an outstanding team player.

BOYS SOCCER

Every team dreams of reaching an incredible level of talent and determination so that they are untouchable (congratulations Girls' Soccer). The Boys' Soccer team fell a tad bit short of this goal, but it is fair to say that their superior performance answered any and all questions their critics might have had. They were the forgotten team, doomed to be mediocre at best. Dire predictions and low expectations were the rule as the 1990 season commenced. However every true Sachem in their hearts rejected these thoughts and played with determination to prove them wrong. The scrappy little squad battled its way to a 10-4-4 record, tying for third place in the tough Middlesex League, and gaining a berth in the state tournament.

The ridiculously low turnout of players at the past year's double sessions caused a rare challenge for the Winchester program. Traditionally, there was a surplus of talented players, necessitating cuts on the team. No such thing happened the past year, as both Varsity and Junior Varsity had problems in mustering up enough people for a roster. On top of this ugly but surmountable problem, was a slew of injuries which assaulted the team for the duration of the season. It had contorted knees, a dislocated pinkie, swollen ankles, torn hip flexors, concussions (on and off of the field), pulled calves, etc. But those petty problems never inhibited the strong-willed team from getting the job done.

The WHS Boys' Soccer team did with what it had...and did it damn well. No team walked off the field after playing the Sachems without conceding to it a deep respect. The winning combination of will power and sheer talent led it to a successful season.

Peter French strides past the Burlington defense with the ball. As a sophomore, Peter led the team in goals scored.

Senior Jeff Foster scrambles in between two Burlington players at Skillings field. Jeff always gave great team support on and off the field.

VOWING THE CROWDS

BOTTOM ROW: William Lee, Kevin Queenan, Capt. Josh Briggs, Capt. Steve Mueller, Capt. Darin Clemente, John Racek, and Jeffery Foster.

David Hood, an outstanding sophomore, heads the ball forward before the Burlington offense can attempt a shot.

Field Hockey:

Coach Mary Brown and team captains Lorette McWilliams, Amy Poftak, and Paulie Barclay stand smiling at Skillings Field before a game.

Senior Amy Berry battles with intensity for the ball. Amy was a crucial part of the field hockey team.

The girls on the past year's field hockey team exchanged passes, took shots, and through it all, kicked opposing teams "derrieres." This year the team had to work with young but talented players. The Junior Varsity team proved that they would be a big part of Winchester's future.

This year's JV team, headed by "Big Chief Keefe," was fully stacked with young talent. Many freshman and sophomores, as well as a few returning juniors, made this team a splash. These JV players proved that with hard work and determination, they will be worthy of representing the varsity team. Good job JV!!

Varsity field hockey may not be one of the most notorious teams that Winchester High has to offer, but one thing is for sure; they have got loads of team spirit!! This year's team had a lot riding on their shoulders, but they handled the burden well. Coach Brown successfully led her players to a season that they were proud of.

-Liliana Palacios

A Winning Effort

Junior Margaret Behnke was a strong team player throughout the year. She should be helpful to the team in the future.

Captain Paulie Barclay cheers on teammate Margaret Behnke. Paulie was always willing to give the team support.

Football:

Senior Jamie Mabardy prepares the Sachem defense for the next play. Jamie was an essential part of the team's success.

Dan McGrath scrambles with the football against the Reading defense. Dan performed exceptionally in every game of the year, especially in the last league game versus Woburn.

The mighty Sachem football team dominated the Middlesex League capturing the League title and a trip to Foxboro Stadium. Mr. Donohue, in his first year as head coach, led his team to one of the most memorable seasons at Winchester high. The season began with a bang against Somerville and ended with a massive explosion against Woburn, which earned them a trip to the Super Bowl. Led by tri-captains, Brian Gianci, Doug Jordan, and Mike Rauseo, the Sachems displayed skill, speed, team spirit, and determination. Their quick offense, powered by quarterback Dan McGrath and the strong and impenetrable defense led by Jamie Mubardy combined to form a team that was unstoppable. The winning combinations of stellar offense and defense was the foundation of the Sachems success.

-Monica Slater

SUPERBOWL CHAMPIONS!!

Coach Donahue led the Sachems to a league title and had a magnificent debut year.

Chris Edmands helped the team this season by kicking field goals and extra points.

Brian Thompson and Leroy Hoskins prepare to hunt down the oppositions quarterback.

Michael Rauseo, after scoring a touchdown, gets a high five from Leroy Hoskins.

Cross Country 1990:

The 1990 Cross-Country World Tour was incredible. The team exemplified the die hard desire to run faster than it took Milli Vanilli to lose their grammy. The keys to the success of the team were their tough workouts, great coaches, strong dedication, and the large turn out of under classmen.

Coaches Joe Cantillon and Lorin Maloney took great pride in creating the most impossible workouts for the squad to suffer through. The two coaches also felt that it appropriate to kick the team off of the bus after each meet so they could run an extra three miles back to the high school. Luckily, many new runners sacrificed themselves to the team. Danny Scortino, the most good looking man in the world, helped the team at the start of the season, but was unfortunately plagued with injury. Alain Toussaint and Scott Lundin were also new to the team and were very helpful throughout the season. Ray Regan, in his second year, ran above and beyond expectation. The Triumverate of Didi Chen, Chris Powers, and Michael Aleo dusted the league's best and gave the team heavy doses of spirit. They did what they could to make the season as unusual and memorable as possible. One more unique part of this season was the existence of a girls' team. Sara Bonnell, as a freshman, led the pack of girl runners. Sarah O'grady, a junior, was the eldest of the girls' team and gave the team extra depth. Didi Chen, Ray Regan and Sara Bonnell were named Middlesex League All-Stars.

The 1990 Cross-Country team at least doubled in size from the previous season to an amazing 30 members. Without the winning combinations of coaching, dedication, and hard work, the team would have simply been dust in the wind. However, after completing a most excellent season, every runner was proud to be a Sachem!

-Michael Aleo

Silent Victory

Shadowed by the praise of other fall sports, the Girl's Swim Team silently achieved great success. Team captains, Kristen Herlihy, Mary Murray, and Diana Coughlin, led the way for the swimming Sachemettes. The team finished second in the Middlesex League with a 5-1 record. Rookie coach, Rich Cheney, was a major factor in the girls' success. One team member said "Rich helped each of us realize our potential and we all improved during the season." The team's hard work and dedication did not go unnoticed. Rich awarded the girls by allowing them to play water polo occasionally (special guests appearances by Mike Aleo and Will Lee).

Several swimmers performed especially well and qualified for states. Future captains Maura Riley and Brooke Foley dominated the League in swimming and diving and participated in state meets. Tara Juwa and Julie Buchanan should prove to be standouts in the coming years, as they too qualified for states. Seniors Liz Holt, Stacey Smith, and Elysa Aswad also excelled in their events and gave the team depth.

In the immortal words of Olympic Gold Medalist and World Champion Tim Daggett, "Without dreams, you will die." Although they did not receive great fame, their dreams were fulfilled and they will all live happily ever after!

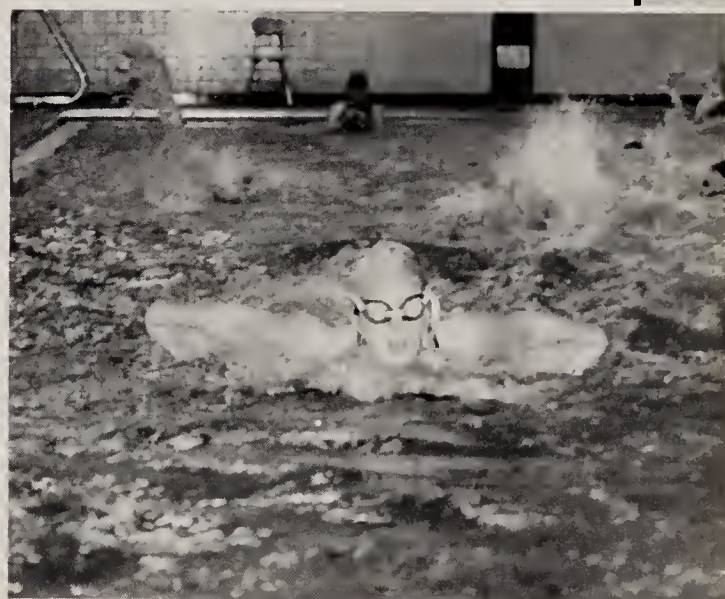

-Will Lee, Mike Aleo and Lisa Kenerson

Junior Ben Haskell finds the water a teeny bit too cold and sprints for the shallow end to get out.

Freshman Gabe Brandt wonders whether or not the early morning practices are really worth it.

Juniors Scott Manahan and Zach Gaumer are dumbfounded by the intricate functions of their stopwatch.

Beloved Coach Rich Cheney copies the previous meet's lineup in preparation for an upcoming meet.

Waterbury, Nick Lippman, Jim Potter.

Plunge Right In!

Senior Jon Racek checks his reflection in the water before "plunging right in" and swimming to victory.

In the tradition of Winchester divers, Junior Mike Shannon shames his diving opponents in the Middlesex League with his grace and agility.

Every sports team tries to distinguish itself from the others. Some flaunt their record. Some flaunt their spirit. Some flaunt their hard work. The 1991 WHS Men's Swim Team flaunted it all. And why not? Only they had the nerve to wear shorts and ties on the days of meets even when the temperature outside was below freezing. No one else (except for that fall girls' team, whoever they are) had the determination to practice at five o'clock each and every morning. The members of the swim team worked, played (water polo), ate, and showered together long before anyone in town got up! (By the way, they were all straight) The team was led by captains Chris Jervey, Jon Racek, and Zach Gaumer. Veteran coach Rich Cheney guided the swim team through long and vigorous practices, preparing them for what appeared to be a tough season. The hard work paid off in the end when the team captured the Middlesex League Championship for the second year in a row. At the same time, many swimmers qualified for Sectionals and States. Every member of the team was indispensable. Besides, in the words of the Little Mermaid Ariel, "You want thing-a-ma-bobs? We got sixteen."

BOUNCING TO A VICTORY!!

Michael Szczepanski strides with confidence through his 400 meter race.

As usual, good looking Junior Danny Sciortino, takes 1st in the 1000.

Once again led by the immortal coach Tom Kline, the Boys' Track team envisioned an explosive season. Every runner gave 110% of their dynamic enthusiasm and dying desire to run themselves into their grave. Senior captains Didi Chen, Michael Aleo, and Chris Powers lifted the spirit of the team with their leadership and blistering speed. Each class supplied oodles of talent. Speed demon senior, Rob Meehan, always ran well for the team in the dash. Michael Bett (a republican member of the HHC) gave the team depth in the two mile while Bill Porter just made it over in the high jump. Juniors Dan MacGrath, Chris Parks, and Danny Sciortino were essential to much of the teams success. The sophomore class was loaded with speed. Brian Lindmark ("Throw in the damn towel!"), Shawn Oliver, and Ray Regan began to dominate the league in just their second year of track; and shot putter Justin Simeone is well on his way. The freshman have also shown great potential. Alain Toissaint and Ben Simeone ran very well in their first track season. However, individuals did not make up the team. Every member of the team, either varsity or junior varsity, supported each other and pushed each other to their limits. When the team was healthy, they were unstoppable. Unfortunately, the season ended with a 5-4 record. The team's youth and an abundance of injuries were to blame. But without a doubt, the talented underclassmen will dominate the league next year. The 1991 Boys' Track team will sorely miss seven mile runs around the Mystic Lakes and suicidal track workouts in the field house.

-Will Lee, Michael Aleo, and Lisa Kenerson

Hard Work- Hidden Talent

What do Tim Dagget and the Girls' Track team have in common? Not much, except both have the desire, dream, passion, and utter gall to hurdle any and all obstacles in their way. The team was coached by a newcomer to Winchester High - Thayer Plante. She was an experienced runner who provided knowledge as well as enthusiasm in all areas of the sport. Comprised of about twenty girls, the team was led by four seniors: Stephanie Ciano, Meaghan McKenna, Stacey Smith, and Lisa Kenerson. The remainder of the team was made up of several new underclassmen and varsity letter returners who provided depth to the team. Several girls qualified for the State Coaches' Meet, States, class meets, and the Freshman/Sophomore Meet. Future track stars Diedre Murdock and Sarah Bonnell competed well at the Freshman/Sophomore Meet. Deidre won the two mile, and Sarah placed fourth in the 1000. With such a young team there is hope and potential for the Girls' track team in the future.

-Lisa Kenerson

Leroy Hoskins passes the puck to a teammate. Leroy was a strong part of this Sachem team.

Brian Sartin catiously defends his goal.

Keep the puck out of here!!

A Sachem forward takes control of the puck and breaks across the blue line.

Captains Leroy Hoskins, Brian Newburn, and Takeshi Sato are all smiles before the game.

Leroy keeps a keen eye on the opposing offender, looking for an opportunity to steal the puck.

Michael Joe Bett grins as he prepares for a tense golf match.

Captain Pat Mulvaney always had a smile to inspire the team with.

Senior Michael Van der Ven practices his form for Burlington Studios.

One team which rarely got its fair share of publicity was the golf team. Last year's Sachem team proved that they were definitely worthy of media coverage as they completed a magnificent season. Coach Dave Miller had high expectations despite the team being rather inexperienced. Depth was the key.

Senior captain Pat Mulvaney led the team. The matches often proved to be a bitter fight to the very end, with the Sachem duffers refusing to concede defeat. This attitude paid off, as many matches were won by astonishing comebacks. The season ended with six wins and seven losses, many of which were very close.

The 1990 Sachem golf team's performance proved to be a pleasant surprise in the myriad of Sachem sports. Hopefully this will be the beginning of a rich tradition already found in many other Sachem sports.

Rachel Gallery was a strong competitor in her first year on the team.

With Captain Alyssa Berman and Coach Mim Quine, the WHS Girls' Gymnastics team's future looked bright. The team members were very enthusiastic and were ready to take on any challenges that lay before them. And even though it was tough, the girls were dedicated and were able to have a successful season. The team was comprised of three juniors, five sophomores, and one freshman. The events competed in were bars, beam, vault, and floor. In each meet there were two girls who competed in all four events, the all-arounds. Although the season started off with some losses, they conquered the Gloucester team, with their highest score, 108-105. The team stuck together through some bad injuries and tough times. Despite it all, the Winchester Girls' Gymnastics Team had a fun-filled season!

Chrissy Battinelli

SHAKE, RATTLE, AND ROLL!!

Once again, the seasoned Sachem grapplers under the direction of Coach Larry Tremblay stunned and stomped their lackluster opponents, picking up their second league championship in a row. Led by energetic captains Jeff Foster and Mike Britt, the Sachem matmen slammed their way to an undefeated season within the league. The combination of starvation and grueling practices took their toll on the Sachems but paid in dividends at the final meet against Woburn. "They made our mats sweaty," was all that gymnasts Chrissy Battinelli and Nicole Buckley could say. Well, even though they could have smelled better, they were the best wrestlers that they could be.

Hungry Hungry Hippos

CHEER UP

M-O-V-E, move that ball for a T-D!" These Familiar words can be heard echoing throughout Knowlton Football Stadium on a crisp Saturday in autumn. Those words are chanted by 16 dedicated cheerleaders. Contrary to popular belief, all cheerleaders are NOT blond bimbos, ( it should be noted that the majority of the squad were brunette). They worked hard to please the crowd and support the team with performances. Cheering is not all long and monotonous practices, it can be a lot of fun too! Cheerleaders were often out late on Friday nights during the fall to let papering player's houses. This year was especially exciting and rewarding with the Football team winning the Dn. II Superbowl, the Boy's Soccer team finishing second in the league, the Basketball team making the State Tournament and the Hockey team ending their season with TWO WINS!!

The Cheerleaders finished up the fall season with only one injury, Tamara Jeffrey was hit hard during a Football game and sprained her ankle, a devastating loss because she was out for three weeks. during the winter season they all remained healthy and injury free. It should be noted that the Cheerleaders work very hard, but have a great time as well!

-Kelley Campbell

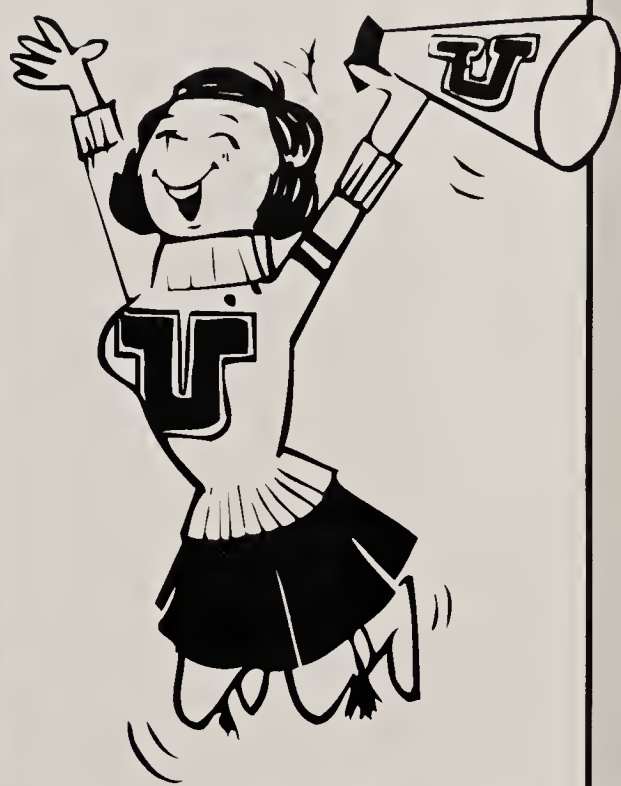

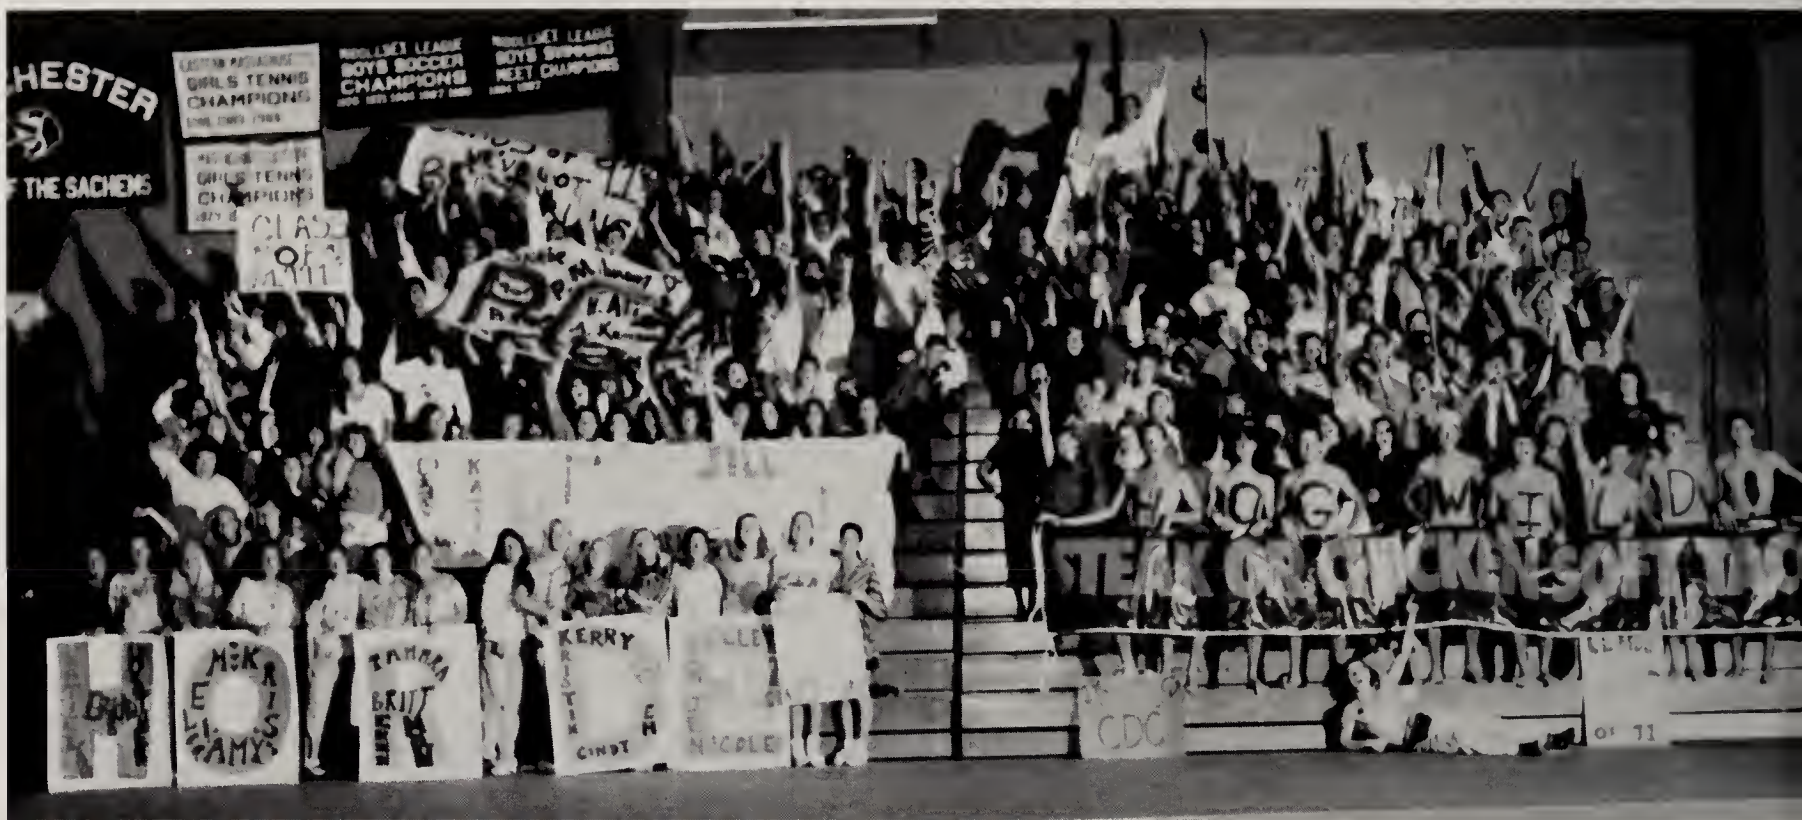

Jen Angelis was always smiling as she cheered on the teams.

Jill Slater and Heather Johanson relax before they must perform for the next team.

The squad shows off all their hard work and their dedication.

Winning People

Along with the extracurricular and special activity groups, there was an abundance of people who each contributed to the Winning Combination. The members of the administration and guidance departments organized and directed the faculty and student body, making sure that each day went by smoothly. At the same time, teachers tried to make their classes both informative and entertaining while the students attempted to give their undivided attention. A sense of harmony was also established among the students themselves. Seniors, juniors, sophomores, freshmen, athletes, scholars, and musicians all inhabited the ranks of WHS with a sense of pride. Many individuals were themselves a winning combination of varied talents. Dedicated teachers doubled as department heads, coaches and activity advisors. Students achieved in their classes and at the same time participated in athletics, clubs, theatrical productions, and student government. And of course, who could forget the custodians who kept the building in working order, and the cafeteria aides who kept the students' hunger sated with big things, chocolate chip cookies and an occasional lunch or two.

Julie Carlsen and Elizabeth Armstrong get to know each other during orientation.

Each fall, the WHS newcomers include some students from other countries. This year they came from northern Europe, the Far East, and Africa.

Soeng He Min, a freshman, came from Seoul, Korea. Although she found it hard to adapt to the US school system, because she was not accustomed to learning in English, the teachers and students have done a lot to help.

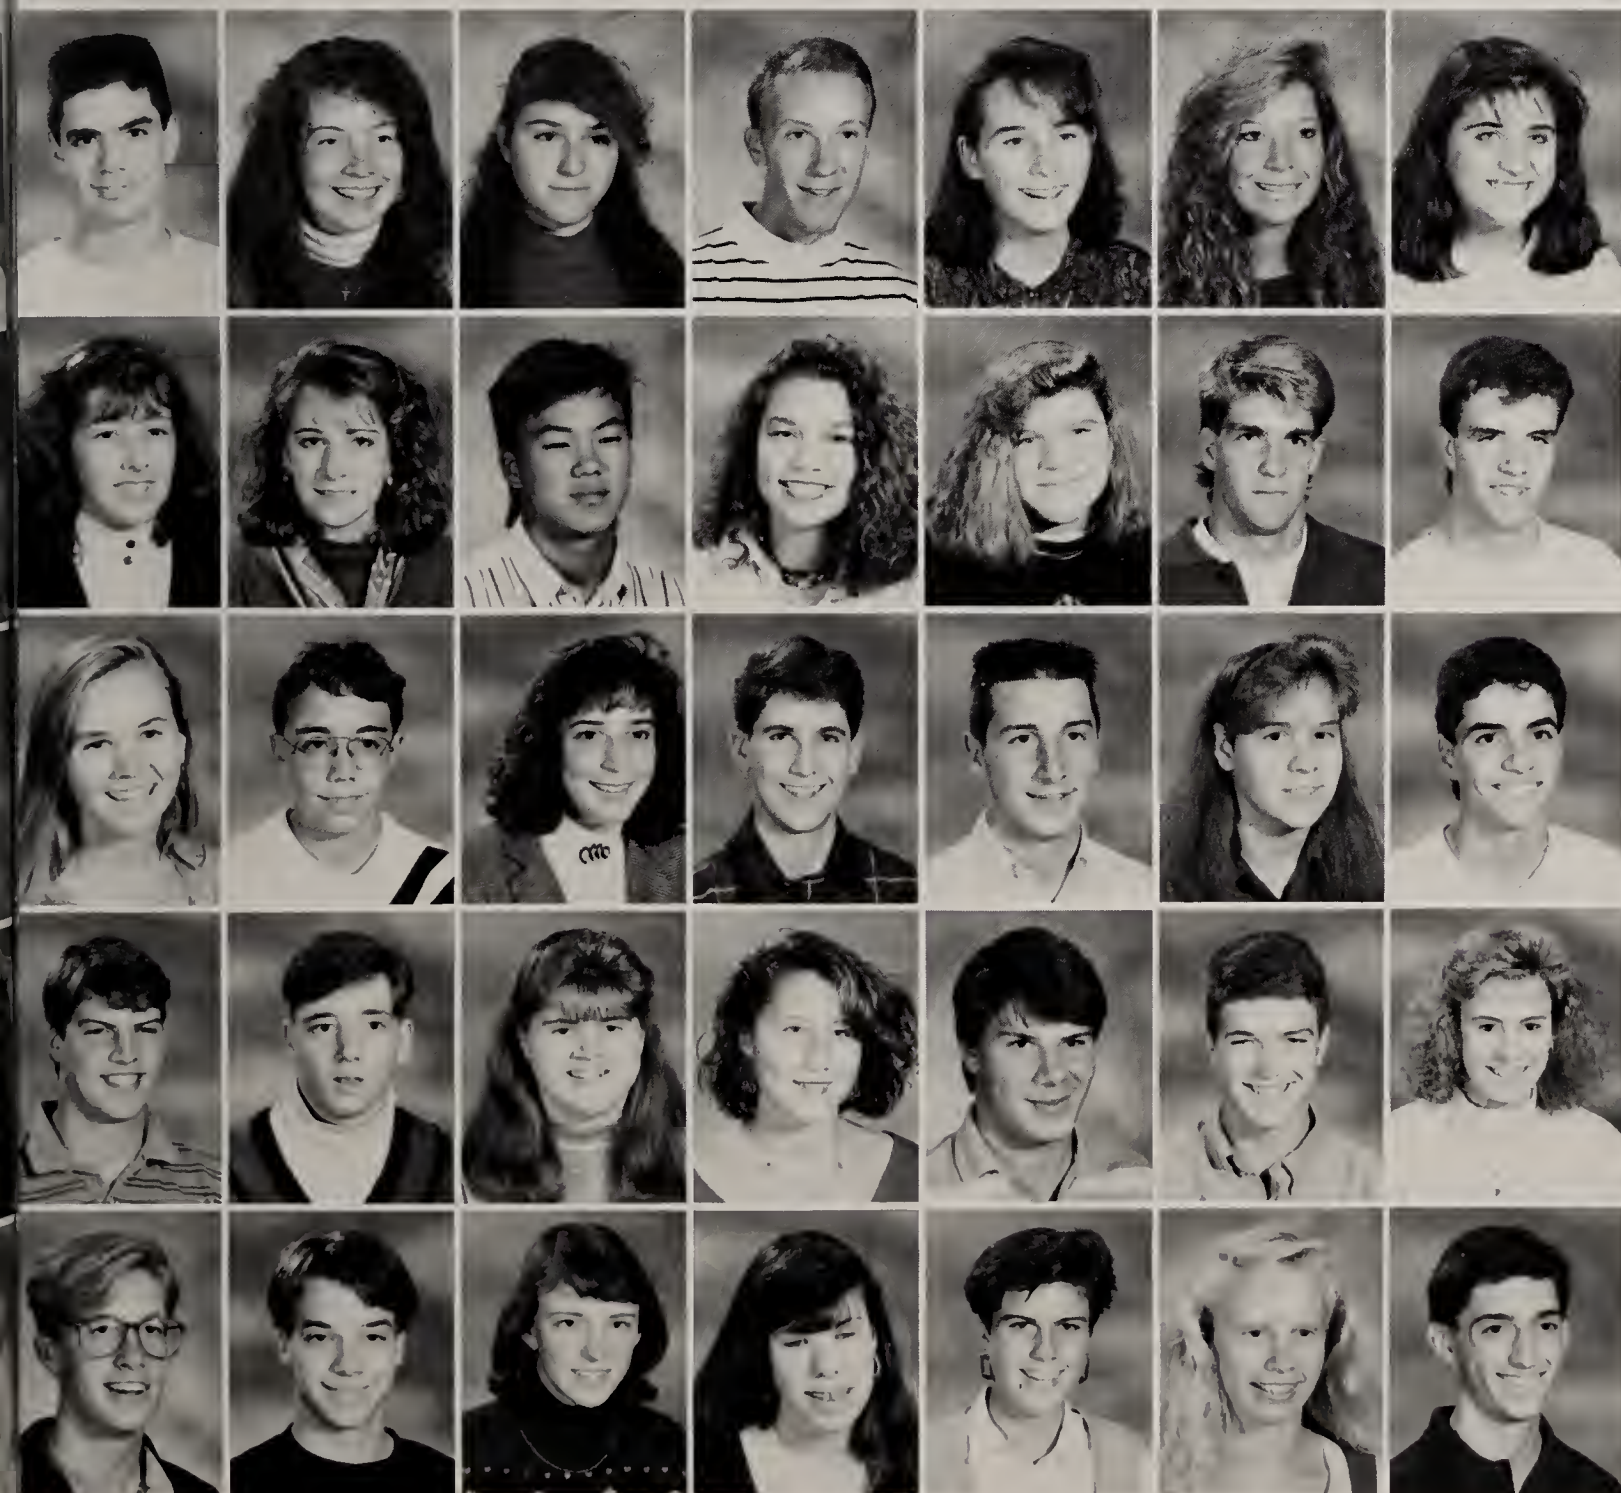

Julie Carlsen is from North Jutland, Denmark, and was a sophomore. Julie said the people were friendly and welcoming, but a little vague in their understanding of geography.

Arne Gehler had been living in Kiel, Germany, when he came to WHS as a junior class as an exchange student. He was used to a shorter school day, and said that although there was a lower academic level here, the teachers made up for it by assigning more homework.

Elizabeth Armstrong was another junior newcomer, an American who had lived in Nairobi, Kenya for twelve years.

Adapting from a foreign school system to ours means adjusting to different school hours, fewer subjects, greater emphasis on sports, much more homework, orange walls, and more imaginative teaching styles.

VARIETY IS THE SPICE OF LIFE

With the opening of the 1990 school year, students and faculty were faced with a change in the daily schedule. In past years at Winchester high, each class met at the same time, day after day. Although this type of schedule was easy to follow, it definitely lacked variety. Many of those who were not morning people found themselves frequently lost in first period class as they tried to finish off their nights sleep. Mr. Ritchie was determined to put an end to this monotonous schedule. What he came up with was a rotating plan that would liven up the dull schedule to which we all grew accustomed. The schedule was based on a seven day cycle which drops a period each day. For instance, on day seven, period seven does not meet. Instructional time is not lost due to the fact that the classes are extended to 55 minutes, instead of 45 minutes. The first class of the day is period one or two which alternates every other day, except for one day when period seven meets first. On day one, period seven meets first period, and on day two period seven meets second period and continues in this pattern throughout the schedule. Periods three and four alternate, as does five and six. Sound confusing? Of course it all seemed extremely confusing when we were first introduced to this new schedule. However, with a few days of practice, and for some, a few weeks, this new change provided the variety and enthusiasm that was once lacking. Senior Jon Racek gave his opinion by stating, "It's neat!" While Jon and many others feel that this change is beneficial, there are still a few who would rather stick with the same old schedule. Perhaps because they do not like the idea of change, or they find themselves going to the wrong classes too often, it's all simply a matter of opinion. Overall, the new schedule has proved to be productive and favored by the majority of the students and faculty. After all, "variety is the spice of life!"

BUILDING A BETTER WORLD

"We will save the world, our friends and their minds." These are the primary goals of three of Winchester High School's community service groups: Reaction, SADD, and Peer Counseling.

The students of SADD work to make the roads a safer place by informing W.H.S. that "Friends Don't Let Friends Drive Drunk." Peer Counseling is a group of students who help others help themselves. These students are ready and willing to lend an ear to any visitor to the Drop-In-Room. And then there is Reaction. The environmental/social group that will fearlessly face any problem that needs solving.

Every Monday, a bus pulls up in front of the high school. About 40 kids hop on the bus and ride into Roxbury. The streets are filthy, all vegetation is dead, crumbling buildings line the streets. But in the midst of this dreary city lies a precious gem. Lots of them actually. Inside the church where WHS students tutor, are about 40 African-American children and 2 Asian-Americans who grab their tutors hands and run off to a classroom. The children anticipate the students arrival and eager to learn, (at least most of them). One hour of homework ensues, with coaching from the WHS students. The rewards are endless, like after the first week of studying spelling, when my tutee showed me her big 100 at the top of her test. What a great feeling that was! Roxbury tutoring makes you feel like you are doing something good for others, and you are!

Some people say that having lots of stickers is the best way to decorate your locker. Others think that a few pictures and some wrapping paper make a good locker. The remainder of the students tend to stick with the terrific orange color of their lockers. When someone's birthday rolls around, he may be lucky enough to have his locker decorate by friends. On any given day, you can walk down the hall and see at least one locker with balloons or streamers popping out of it.

Another good quality about these lockers is that most people make shelves to put their books on. These shelves help to keep lockers neat and clean. So don't just accept your locker the way it is. Decorate it the way you want and then you will appreciate your locker even more!

A change for the better? The cafeteria seems to be the happenin' place. Since the High School has welcomed an outside caterer to prepare lunch more and more students are staying in school. The caterers have a variety of food from slush puppies to hamburgers every day. The food brings in many students which cause the lines to extend out the door. Everyone seems to be happy with the new change, but there's been just one complaint, the prices. Indeed they are a little steep. You have to decide between good, edible food and high prices.

Phil Vultaggio, Chris Darling, and Jeremy Teahan are of the many to stay in school enjoying the new lunches.

Mary, the lunch lady tries to adjust to the new system of ringing in the prices.

The Class of '94 Becomes Part of the Combination

The alarm went off at 6:15 a.m. and suddenly you were faced with reality: your first day of school at Winchester High. A million different emotions raced through you and every other freshman student on that fateful day, September 5, 1990. Their nerves were soon calmed, however, by the warm greetings of Dr. Ritchie and Student Union President Mike Bett. Both speakers gave them helpful advice on adapting and contributing to the Winchester High environment, and then the students were directed to their assigned homerooms, where the real work began. They received their class schedules and began to fill out a barrage of forms. At the same time, they found guidance from their homeroom teachers and reassurance from their friends. The last step of their orientation brought them on complete tours of the high school led by peer counselors and Student Union members. After a short preview of their new classes, the 2:08 p.m. bell rang and that first day was complete. Now these students would just have four more years to look forward to! Good luck, class of 1994!!

Ms. Rosazza gives helpful advice to one of her new homeroom students as they prepare for the Flex-Scheduled year ahead.

Are you a "regular"?

What does it mean to be a "regular"? Well, you can ask anyone who has open campus, but no car, so they have to come to school. Don't get me wrong, study hall is terrific. I have gotten to know the lunch ladies rather well. And who better than these friendly women to talk to first thing in the morning? The cafeteria is probably the best place to go if you want to sit around and gossip. As a "regular" in a first period study, I will give forth to you knowledge I have gained about having a study in the cafeteria first thing in the morning:

- A) You can bring work to do, but you definitely will not get it done.
- B) As soon as you walk through the cafeteria doors, you will be stared and gawked at.
- C) If you don't sit down and talk, when you leave, you could possibly be the next topic of discussion.
- D) Your dunk shots into the garbage will get better each day.

E) Your breakfast everyday will consist of a donut, a cookie fresh out of the oven, and Hawaiian punch. (Real healthy, huh?)

F) Finally, if lucky enough, you will get to talk to Mrs. Perrone.

She stops by to say "hi" and gives us a joke for the day. As you can see, it takes a lot of work and committed time to become a "regular", especially in first period study. So if you would like to join us, rearrange your schedule and stop in everyday. Don't worry though, once a "regular", always a "regular".

The sun was just coming over the horizon, while forty-five students were on their way to spend the day in New York City. The majority of the students who went took Spanish. They left at six in the morning and returned around midnight. The day included a tour of the United Nations Building, the Empire State Building, the Lladro Museum and ended with visiting the Metropolitan Museum. For many students, the most exciting part of the trip was the restaurant where they ate everything from Nachos to ice cream. Another attraction was the Metropolitan Museum, but not just for the Mexico Exhibit. Here many students did some Holiday shopping with the man selling watches on the street. Time didn't allow them to visit Rockefeller Center but they did get to see it from the bus. The day was just about over, so they got on the bus and headed home making one last stop to none other than the Golden Arches. All in all, everyone enjoyed themselves and the day was a success.

BLESSED TEACHER

Everyone can look into their past and pick out their favorite teacher. That teacher usually stands out for making learning interesting. Whether it be for a good sense of humor or a particularly entertaining teaching style, they made a lasting impression on their students. This past year, Margaret Sullivan was named the Biology Teacher of the Year. Her skill and enthusiasm well exceeded those of her colleagues. But her efforts have not only gained her recognition, they have ensured her a spot in many students' memories.

ROCKIN' RESOURCE ROOM

Rock & roll and the resource room. Two subjects you normally wouldn't link together. The results of a creative mind and a need for alternative teaching methods have produced the concept of using rock & roll to teach students. The head of the resource room, Ms. Michelson, came up with this idea when she was invited to Europe to teach English to Polish students. She picked out a variety of songs with lyrics reflecting a wide range of the English vocabulary and played them for the Polish students. They picked up the language quickly. This is just one of the unique qualities of the resource room and its teachers, Ms. Michelson, Christine Murphy, and Martha North. The resource room is a program designed to provide academic support and skill development to students in need. It also brings the staff together by modifying the everyday curriculum to fit the needs of the students. Prospective students are core-evaluated, which includes a psychological and educational test, and a home visit. Students admitted to the resource room can use it to take tests and work on papers in a more comfortable atmosphere. There can sometimes be up to 100 students working in the resource room daily. It is to much applause that Ms. Michelson exclaims, "I love my job; it's never dull!"

ever. To special underclassmen, thanks for the good times. Good luck everyone!!

Through determination and ability, even seemingly impossible dreams can be achieved. Sheilah McCarthy exemplified these traits, and her talent and perserverance made her one of the nation's top swimmers.

Sheilah started swimming competitively in eighth grade, and she progressed rapidly from there. She swam for the Belmont Aquatics Swim Club in her freshman year and then as a sophomore switched to Bernal's Gators Swim Club, a much more competitive club suited to her potential. Sheilah's training at Gators was extremely rigorous, a daily routine of waking up at 4:45 am, practicing for two hours, and returning to swim from 5:30 to 8:00 pm in the evening. Sheilah's determination and discipline also led her through an arduous schedule of lifting weights, doing sit-ups and push-ups, running, and, of course, swimming - an average of over 11,000 yards each day.

On weekends, Sheilah either practiced more or traveled with Gators to compete all over the country. Her meets took her to such cities as Indianapolis, Buffalo, and Austin and pitted her against the top swimmers in the nation. Sheilah's commitment toward swimming certainly paid off. As a junior, she advanced from the N.E. Seniors to the Junior Olympics, where the top swimmers in the National East competed. Sheilah won both the 100 yard and 200 yard backstroke. Advancing to the Senior Nationals, she placed 14th in the 100 yard, 20th in the 200 yard backstroke races, and will attend the Barcelona Olympic tryouts.

Sheilah's training was an all year activity which left her with little free time. She remarked, "With swimming and school, I don't have a lot of time for other things - but I love swimming and would never give it up." However, Sheilah found time to participate in other extracurricular activities including the Spanish Club, the German Club, and SADD. She was also a major contributor to the environmental group, Reaction. In addition, Sheilah had a heavy course load as a senior, including many Honors and AP level classes.

Close friend Christy VanAken commented "Even though swimming takes up so much of her free time, she still manages to raise hell with her friends, especially during the three weeks she gets off in August." Sheilah cited her family and friends as being big supporters of her swimming. This, plus her own determination and swimming talent will hopefully lead her to Barcelona in '92 and Atlanta in '96. Regardless of the outcome, Sheilah McCarthy displayed a persevering courage and drive which turned a dream into a reality.

Exemplifying the true meaning of the word 'captain,' Cortney Perkins was a leader both on and off the field. She led her nationally ranked number one girls' soccer team to the Middlesex League, Eastern Massachusetts, and State Championships with an undefeated record. In addition to her accomplishments on the soccer field, Cortney took great pride in her academic endeavors. Not only was she an outstanding student, but she participated in many clubs and extracurricular activities. She was a member of the Spanish and German Clubs, Student Union, and was a Drug and Alcohol counselor. She went on the Spanish Foreign Exchange, wrote for the Red and Black, played basketball (Freshman, Sophomore, and Junior years), and ran Spring Track.

Cortney made the Girls' Varsity Soccer team her sophomore year, and started for the team in each game. Playing left-fullback, she was a force on defense which, during the course of one season, allowed a limited number of goals to be scored (6 goals during the regular season, and only one during the playoffs). She became quite a celebrity her senior year with all of the recognition that the team received. She spoke on major television stations, including channels 4, 5, and 7. Cortney was proud to say, "We may not be the stongest team out there, but we worked hard and we definitely deserve what we got. We tried not to worry about the publicity or let the pressure get to us; rather we used it to our advantage. The thought of losing our fame was an incentive to work even harder."

Cortney intended to play soccer in college, but said that she would miss her high school team tremendously. "The unity of our team is overwhelming. We're like a family. We spend so much time together and strive for the same goal which brings us very close."

As both a student and athlete, Cortney made a lasting impression at Winchester High School.

Born To Be Hog Wild

It's tough to describe a guy like Jeff Foster. He was definitely eccentric. He would show up at your house at 11:00 on a school night, and unless it was wrestling season, make himself dinner. I guess Jeff can pretty much be summed up in two words: "neat guy." Jeff was good at everything. No matter what you talked about, he knew how to do it, or what it was. He probably read every single book in existence, watched every nature show, and learned the rules to every sports ever invented. I knew Jeff since Junior High and I have to say that he was one of the most versatile people I ever met.

Jeff found an important balance in his life that eluded most people in high school. He was successfully able to manage his time wisely. Jeff played and excelled in three sports: soccer, wrestling, and lacrosse. His best showing came on the mat, where he terrorized his opponents throughout New England. Still, Jeff realized the importance of his schoolwork. Whether it was by taking AP Calculus or French, Jeff earned his rank in the top ten of his class.

But Jeff was more than just an athlete and a scholar. The thing that made him such a "neat guy" was his personality. He could be found tooling all around town in Ted, his white Subaru. He was the founder and major contributor to the Hibachi Club. He was the Boys' Sports Editor for the Red and Black. But mostly, he was just a good friend and a congenial guy. He was almost always in a good mood, and was willing to help other people. If someone needed a ride somewhere, Jeff would always volunteer. He would make you breakfast or help you with your homework. He never thought of himself (except when he was at your house for lunch).

Jeff's future looks bright. With an outgoing personality, a wide range of knowledge, and a good understanding of the real world, he is sure to be something important in the years to come. And don't be surprised if he shows up at your house for dinner. That's just the way he is. I guess you just have to get used to it.

In The Spotlight

Deanna Dellacioppa sang since she was able to speak. She remembered singing with her mother when she was little. Her mom would sing lead and Deanna would pipe in with what she knew of the songs. But she came a long way since singing backup for her mother.

Deanna was a member of the chorus for her entire high school career. She was also a part of a number of musicals. Her first was in junior high and it was titled "Rainbows and Dreams." In High School, she appeared in "Leader of the Pack" and "Rags." She also performed in the dramas "Fame" and "The Lights are Warm and Coloured." But Deanna did not only sing during performances. She sang as she walked down the hall, when she was with friends, when she drove her car, and even when you tried to speak to her.

Outside of school, she was in district chorus for four years, Junior Districts twice and Senior Districts twice. Deanna spent the summer of 1989 touring Europe with the national choral group called "The Sounds of America." They sang in Austria, France, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, and Luxemburg. She was also a member of the New England Conservatory Youth Chorale. In addition to all this, Deanna took private voice lessons.

Although it does not seem like she had much time for anything but singing, Deanna was a dedicated Peer Counselor, a member of the Italian Club, and President of the WHS SADD chapter.

Deanna claimed her talent was hereditary because her mother also had a beautiful voice. She said her mom always encouraged her and was glad that one of them pursued a music career.

Deanna most admired Barbara Streisand because of the qualities of her voice. She claimed, "When I can sound like that I'll know I have something."

Where will we see Deanna in the future? Her dream was to become a professional recording artist, and she always worked hard to reach that goal. She planned to attend Berkley College to study voice and will continue to make as many auditions as possible to let people know that she is out there. She admitted, "I know it will take me a long time to get where I want to get," but we have confidence that Deanna's future in music will be promising. A lot more will definitely be seen, and of course heard of Deanna Dellacioppa.

When the name 'William Lee' is mentioned, words like 'genius' and 'hardworking' immediately spring to mind. Will was revered as a scholar and worked hard to achieve his goals. But not many people realized that beyond Will's academic genius was a multi-talented athlete, musician, and actor with a good personality. Indeed, Will reached a pinnacle of performance both scholastically and academically.

Will always challenged himself to excel. He always took the highest level courses possible, and in his junior year took on the burden of two AP classes. During senior year he loaded his schedule with five AP's, a most astonishing feat. Said Will, "I admit it is a lot of work, especially in my senior year. Sometimes I question my sanity, but I feel comfortable with my courses and have no regrets."

Recognized and respected by both his teachers and peers, Will has won numerous awards for his academic achievements. As a junior, he was inducted into the Spanish Honor Society. At awards night in the spring of 1990, Will received the highly regarded Williams Book Award, department awards in Math, Science, and English, and a citation for Junior Scholarship in Spanish. Will was also a winner in the Continental Math League Computer Contest. Rounding off his impressive academic record was a Letter of Commendation for his score on the PSAT and a certificate of academic excellence from the Massachusetts Association of School Superintendents.

At one time, Jose walked around perplexed. "What do I want out of life? What am I good at? What makes me be me?" Well after four enlightening years at Winchester High, Jose found the answers to all his questions.

Jose was of Puerto Rican descent and was one of the few bilingual students at Winchester High School. He took spanish classes at school to keep up the language, and dreamed of taking part in the Spanish Exchange Program. Jose always appreciated the humanities. He was a member of the chorus and was selected to the elite octet singing group. Jose was in addition the Art Editor for the Creative Writing Club.

Athletics were also a major part of Jose's life. He was once a member of the cross country team. He was also a member of the varsity winter and spring track teams in which he excelled in the 400 and 600 yard runs. In each race, Jose displayed his blistering speed on the track, and aspired to lead his team to victory. But all these activities aside, one other aspect of Jose shined above the rest.

Art was Jose's love. He was first seriously exposed to art in eighth grade by the Creative Art Workshop, a class offered only to a select group of promising art students.

From there, both his interest and affinity for art increased dramatically. He pursued art throughout high school and topped it off by enrolling in the Senior Art Major program during his senior year. Jose's prowess in art was recognized by the public at the Boston Globe Scholastic Art Show in 1990 where he won a Gold Key. Jose hoped to attend Tufts University and flex his artistic muscle in the five year art program offered there in conjunction with the Museum of Fine Arts. The program offered graduates two degrees: one in art and one in any other field "just in case" things did not work out in the art world.

Jose was verily talented but he insisted that his art was not difficult. "I don't know, it just comes naturally." He said he worked on instinct and for him, "each piece is just another chance." In all truth, Jose was not only a dynamic, multi-faceted person, but a truly unique and gifted artist.

He's... Uh... Different

Carter Dahm, chosen as the "most original" person in the class of 1991, described himself in one word: "young," a very unique response from a very unique person. Carter was a very well-rounded student. He maintained high grades in numerous honor level courses, and was enrolled in two AP classes: AP Physics and AP Tetris, oops, I mean Pascal. He also traveled quite extensively. He spent the summer of 1989 in India with Arup "Humpty" De, and in 1990 he attended summer school sessions at Stanford University with Al "Captian Jack and his Imported Cereals" Park. During the summer of 1991, he and Josh Briggs planned to tour Europe via their feet and backpacks.

Carter also participated in many activities within the high school. He had his own radio show on WHSR FM before the station was canned. He was an active member of the German Club, Curtain and Cue, Student Union, and was the treasurer of the environmental group, Reaction. Carter's goals were simple and few. He wanted to someday set the world record for levels completed in Tetris, and to own his own mountain and rock climbing accessories store in Colorado.

Having taken piano lessons from the age of seven, Carter also developed a fondness for music. Some of his favorite bands/musicians were: U2, Led Zepplin, Neil Young, The Grateful Dead and Lynyrd Skynyrd. He basically preferred "Classic Rock. The stuff that you hear on WBCN." He was unable to give an all-time favorite song, but said that Lynyrd Skynyrd's "Freebird is one hell of a song."

One may at this point be wondering what was so original about Carter (Carter personally feels that the honor should have been given to "Big" Al Park). Well, have you ever seen a swivel chair race? Carter was known to race around town in a swivel chair (one with wheels of course). It was a very simple concept, actually. He sat in a swivel chair and pushed himself with his feet around the streets of Winchester. It was rumored that he attained speeds greater than the speed of sound. He was even pulled over by a cop once and told to "get off of the street." Carter was also original in his response to simple, everyday questions. When asked what two people (living or dead) he would like to eat a meal of batter-fried chicken with, he replied, "Larry Rinaldi and Eric Bogosian. Just for the sake of conversation." And when asked what type of fruit or vegetable he would be if he could and why, he replied, "I would definately be the entire Fruit of the Loom Gang."

Still, not everything that Carter said can be taken literally. His favorite sayings, which can be taken as final words of advice were: "Don't spook the horse" and "It is dangerous to look directly into the sun."

Leadership With A Flair

With good teams must come good leaders. The captains of the girls' soccer team were just that, leaders. It took hard work for a whole team to get along, work hard at every practice, and keep the enthusiasm level high. The captains had to keep each player's feet pointed in the right direction, a task that they most definitely achieved. Emily Lewis was one of the commendable tri-captains of the girls' soccer team, and she will always be remembered for her enthusiasm and spirit.

Emily was the epitome of toughness when she got on the soccer field. Her bloody knees became famous with a close-up from NESN and gave proof of her ceaseless hustle. Even though she was a great player to begin with, she worked to improve herself. By the end of the season, Emily left nothing behind her. Once she was focused, with her dauntless "game face," the ball was hers and her opponents had no hope of beating her. And even though she was a defensively minded player, Emily's poise scored her a few goals. Emily's contribution to the team on and off the field was unsurmountable.

A team member wouldn't be able to say enough about Emily's heart. One could see it in the way she played and also in her everyday relationship with the team. When she played, she gave everything she had. During practices, she was always there with an encouraging word and a smile. The example she set really gave the team inspiration.

Often sincerity is over-used and applied to people who do not know what it means. But Emily was truly sincere in every aspect of the word. She was sincere about her positive feelings about the team, her compliments, and her critiques. She was sincere about her efforts in keeping the players's heads on straight and no one could ever doubt her sincerity once she walked on the soccer field. Emily put all of her true efforts into the season and her work was rewarded.

Emily was a true captain. She led her team to victory after taking on each struggle one by one. But for one to feel truly victorious, a personal goal must be won. For Emily, winning a Middlesex League title, a state championship, and fear in the eyes of her opponents was all she could ever ask for.

Move Over Frank Sinatra

Every great actor or actress started somewhere small. Tom Moore made his acting debut in the fourth grade. He played the roles of a flying monkey and a crow in the Cooperative Theater's production of "The Wizard of Oz." Later, as an eighth grader, Tom took part in the production of "Rainbows and Dreams." This show, created by the students, consisted of small skits and songs that were connected to the themes of rainbows and dreams. At Winchester High, Tom's acting career moved on to greater levels when he participated in "Fame." As a sophomore, he made his debut in his first drama. That spring, Tom performed in Winchester High's production of the musical "Rags." After that, in the fall of his junior year, he acted in the drama "Ground Zero" with seven other actors. Even though it was a small cast and a short play, the ability of the actors made the production a great success. But Tom's true brilliance was seen in the musical "Guys and Dolls." He had one of the lead roles, the character of Sky Masterson. One student remarked how much she enjoyed working with Tom. "Even though he concentrated hard on his performance, he never lost his true sense of humor." Tom Likes acting because, as he said, "I can be someone else instead of always having to be Tom Moore."

Tom was without a doubt a great actor, but he also loved to sing. In fifth grade, Tom transferred from Mystic School to the Boston Archdiocesan Choir School, also known as St. Paul. Singing was a part of everyday life for him. In fact, during the long school day from 7:40 to 4:00, Tom had singing lessons three times a day. He travelled with the school choir in the north-east area, performing in places like Symphony Hall, Tanglewood, and Carnegie Hall. Tom attended the school for two years, and then entered McCall Junior High in seventh grade. Throughout high school, Tom continued on with chorus. Like many other students, Tom participated in chorus after school. His skill was unsurpassable by anyone. He tried out for several select choruses and was chosen for Districts and States in tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades. Tom's musical talent goes beyond singing and acting; he also plays the oboe in the High School Orchestra.

But there was a lot more to Tom than just acting and singing. He was a member of the WHS Men's swim team and was a Drug and Alcohol counselor. He was also a member of the SAC and spent many hours at various town meetings voicing the views of the students of WHS to the school committee. Tom also carried a heavy school schedule which included many AP and Honors level courses.

What does the future hold for Tom? He would most likely participate in the musicals at college. He preferred musicals over drama, but would definitely act in some way in college. He said he would only act in a play for fun. He did not think that music would be his major but could very well be a minor. Joining a glee club or chorus was a definite possibility wherever he attended college. One of Tom's goals was to try out for a part in a movie. Even a small speaking part would satisfy his dream. Broadway was another possibility that he considered. Whatever Tom does in the future, singing and acting will always play an important role in his life.

Last night I wept. I wept because the process by which I have become a woman was painful. I wept because I was no longer a child with a child's blind faith. I wept because I could not believe anymore and I love to believe. I wept because I have lost my pain and I am not yet accustomed to its absence. I wept because from now on I will weep less.

Thank you all, for all you have done for me. I love you.

Ever since Susie Meserve was a young girl, acting and music was a part of her life. Susie was chosen in fourth grade to be a part of the Children's Cooperative Theater's production of "The Wizard of Oz." She sang in the chorus and played a munchkin. In fifth grade, Susie was an Indian Maiden in the play "Peter Pan." In sixth grade, she had a lead in "Mary Poppins," in which she played the part of Mrs. Banks.

At McCall Junior High, Susie showed her interest in singing when she participated in the chorus. As an eighth grader, she was selected to sing with the Junior District Chorus. The same year, she sang in McCall's production of "Rainbows and Dreams." At High School, in the spring of her freshman year, Susie tried out for the musical "Leader of the Pack." She sang several solos in the chorus. In tenth grade, Susie joined the drama "Fame." After that play, she participated in "Rags." Susie was a sweatshop worker. She was a part of the chorus and had many solos. In her junior year, she acted in "And Stuff," a play that was comprised of small skits which formed one large production. With a cast of ten students, Susie remembered the good times they had. "It was awesome. We were like a family. It was such a small cast that we got to know each other really well. It was Fun!" That spring, Susie performed in the musical

"Guys and Dolls." She was chosen as one of the leads of the play, Sarah Brown. In the fall of her senior year, Susie was in the play "The Lights Are Warm And Coloured." "Susie was never in a bad mood. Even in the worst of situations, she could keep a sense of humor," commented fellow actor Phil Obbard.

Susie continued with chorus at the High School. She, like many other students, did not have time during school for the class, but went after school twice a week. In ninth grade, she was selected to be a part of the Junior District Chorus. As a sophomore and junior, Susie was chosen on a higher level to join the Senior District Chorus. Since tenth grade, Susie took voice lessons once a week at the Winchester Music School. Along with that she took piano lessons once a week. Music was a big part of her life.

At college, Susie plans to try out for the plays that are offered. She enjoys singing in musicals but she would like to concentrate on straight acting. Dramas are "so much smaller and contained and fun. In a musical, the cast gets so big." Acting will be the focus, but music will still be important to her. Singing in a glee club is a strong possibility. After college, she might join Broadway. "It's always something I think about. I would love to try it." Singing in a band is another thing that Susie dreams about. Although acting on television doesn't interest her, trying out for a role in a movie does. "I'd like to try it just for the fun of it." Whatever road Susie chooses in her studies and career, she is sure that acting, singing, and playing the piano will not be far behind.

The Undeminishable Spirit

Monica Slater was someone who could always be found with a smile on her face. For most, junior and senior years were very stressful. But although she worked hard, Monica never seemed to get too caught up in the whirlwind of it all. She held the office of Secretary for the class of 1991 for three years at Winchester High School and always had time for class events. At the bike-a-thon, bake sale, senior citizens' pizza day, and dance set-ups, she always lent a helping hand while displaying a cheerful smile.

What better place for a high spirited person to be than on a cheerleading squad? That was where you would find Monica during the fall and winter seasons. At soccer, football, and hockey games, Monica always had a big smile on her face as she yelled as loud as she could to cheer the team on. She also attended many other sporting events on her own time to cheer her friends on. Monica also participated in many sports during her high school career, including girls' soccer, spring track, and softball.

Monica was a girl who definitely deserved to be called "Most Class Spirited." She was always anxious to participate in school functions as well as help with the process of getting them together. She was very interested in involving everyone in the senior class to do things, not just certain cliques. She was concerned with benefiting her friends as well as the school and did so with a lot of spirit and enthusiasm.

The Girl Behind The Name

When people heard the name Christy VanAken, they immediately thought of a very intelligent girl. What some people did not realize was that there was a lot more to Christy than academics.

Christy worked hard and was always academically oriented. She always carried an extremely heavy schedule, accentuated by a senior year crammed with AP courses and a fifth course for honors credit. Christy felt the same pressure that all students at Winchester High School experienced. The pressure for Christy was to remain second in the class, or even to possibly move up to the coveted number one position. While Christy was dedicated to her schoolwork, she also found time to pursue other interests.

For a number of years Christy was involved in drama. She started acting in fourth grade with the "Wizard of Oz" and continued up through high school. She has been in many fall plays as well as spring musicals. When she entered Winchester High, she became a member of Curtain and Cue. After being a member for two years, Christy worked her way to becoming treasurer, and served in that office for two years. Christy's acting also extended beyond the high school. She has worked with the Winchester Unitarian Players as well as the Arlington Friends of Drama.

Christy was also involved in many school clubs. During her sophomore year, Christy helped her friend Sarah Jones set up a SADD chapter at WHS. The chapter was quickly accepted and became a very successful organization. Christy enjoyed being a member of SADD and took pride in the fact that a piece of her will remain at WHS even after she leaves.

But Christy's extracurricular activities did not stop there. She enjoyed being a Peer Counselor and participated in the school's Drug and Alcohol peer teaching program. She also found time to be treasurer of the German Club. Christy learned how to balance her time in order to incorporate most of the activities in which she participated. As Christy said, "Sometimes it's hard to always be on the run, but I don't think I'd want it any other way."

Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious!

Those who strive for excellence in everything achieve it in nothing. Amy Poftak was the exception to this rule.

Rarely has any student accomplished so much in so many different fields as Amy. Commonly acknowledged as a diligent student, Amy more than distinguished herself in all areas of study. Among the academic distinctions awarded to her were the Dartmouth Book Award, an English Scholarship Award, the Mount Holyoke Book Award, membership in the Spanish Honor Society, and a Letter of Comendation for her high score on the PSAT. In her sophomore year, she placed 1st in Massachusetts in the National History Day Contest, and later went to Washington for her stunning paper on Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Amy took five AP courses in her senior year, a heavy load of work by any standards.

Amy also proved herself to be one the school's best athletes. A valuable team member, Amy played goalie and was captain for the field hockey team. She was chosen as a league all-star both her junior and senior years, signifying her as one of the best goal tenders in Massachusetts. With four years of experience, she was also captain of the girls' basketball team in the winter. In addition, Amy contributed to the spring track team by throwing the discus.

On top of the academics and sports, Amy participated in many other pursuits. Active in school government, she was a class representative for four years and a Fairness committee member for two. Amy was also an editor of the award winning Red and Black, contributing her acute literary skills to the newspaper. Her work as a peer counselor and as a member of Reaction showed her concern for others and the community. A veteran member of the Spanish Club, Amy performed the dual function as ambassador/communications specialist. She did not sit idle during the summer either. Amy was a counselor at Camp Betsy Cox in Vermont, where she steadily rose in rank from toilet cleaner to putter of kids to bed to assistant cook over a period of several years.

If you were to ask Amy Poftak about her accomplishment, no doubt she would answer "what accomplishments?" Her modesty and sense of humor never went unnoticed by her peers. Good friend Al Park commented, "Even though she's so smart, talented and driven, she's one of the funniest girls I've ever met." Among her favorite television shows were China Beach, Airwolf, and Nightline. Her favorite movie, also of intellectual nature, was a toss-up between "A Room With a View" and "Anne of Green Gables, the Sequel."

Although she was undecided where to put her talents to use in the future, Amy was considering a major in literature, history, or advanced horticulture. But in whatever field she chooses to pursue, she is bound to succeed. Through a rare combination of effort and talent, Amy Poftak was certainly a high achiever in the pursuit of excellence.

The Tune of Winchester High

For Dave Westner, music was an inseparable part of life. Besides playing the drums for years, he gained notoriety for his virtuoso guitar skills and his "not too shabby" bass playing. So involved in music was Dave that he was not only a member of the Marching Band, but also the Jazz Band, Concert Band, Orchestra, Wind Ensemble, and Chorus. Said Dave, "I figure doing everything I can that has to do with music can only help me." Certainly that was the case for Dave.

Now as any of you who have ever played an instrument know, becoming a good musician requires a lot of practice. When asked how much he worked to reach his level of skill, Dave said, "Well when I was younger, I played the drums pretty often, 'cause I was pretty lame and I wanted to keep up with the other kids. But then I got to WHS and like 'WHAM' I suddenly didn't have to practice anymore. But by then I had started to teach myself guitar and I had lost interest in the drums." That's right. For any of you who have ever seen Dave in a show with any rock band, you will be amazed to know that he is completely self-taught. "Never took a lesson," he claimed. So does he practice guitar? "I guess so, but it's not like I say 'OK, time to practice Dave' and sit down and do it...no, I just do, y'know?" In between mastering the drums and guitar, he also took up bass guitar. "Bass is cool. Except most people think it's a kind of fish..."

Dave's music gave him a lot of publicity. Besides letting him do "everything" in the WHS concerts, his rock 'n roll talents took him to private parties all over New England. That was loads of fun for Dave who said, "Well I meet...interesting... people." Dave played in numerous bands during his years at WHS.

most notably 'Progression' and 'The Canadians.' "I want to start a band and call it 'The Dave Westner Five' or something like that, but it's hard to find kids who are into music now, at least at WHS. When the school had more kids and bands like 'Milli Vanilli' weren't cool, y'know, it was easier back then." What kind of music did Dave listen to? "Oh, I listen to lots of stuff. Anything but reggae and Russian folk songs are alright with me."

In the future, Dave said "I'd like to do something challenging like open a shoe-repair shop in downtown Winchester. No, but really. I want a job where I can hang out, do crossword puzzles, and look important. Something like a long term strategist...or lieutenant governor. I know what everyone's saying out there. 'Yo Dave, why don't you try something that will make a real difference?' Fine - so I'll open my shoelace repair shop in Nicaragua. Alright, so I guess I really don't know what I plan to do in the future...although I saw this great ad on TV for a tractor-trailor school in Andover..."

Whatever Dave does with his future, he's going to be closely followed (as he puts it) by a "giant treble clef." "Even if I become a nuclear technician for Baskin-Robbins, I intend to keep playing guitar. Music's great - I can't shake it." On life, Dave said, "Be yourself. Dye your hair red for Thanksgiving if you want. Besides, it'll give the press something cool to throw back at you when you run for lieutenant governor."

Dave Westner - the tune of Winchester High.

Quality Is Job One

During his four years at Winchester High School, Jeff Russo proved to be a hardworking and dependable person. His peers recognized his talents and voted him president of the class. He served as president of the class of 1991 for two years. Jeff recognized his responsibility and never disappointed his classmates. He put a great deal of time and effort into organizing activities, fund raisers and other projects to benefit both the school and the senior class. Thanks to his devotion to his office, the class of 1991 graduated with many successful and memorable years to remember.

Aside from the time Jeff dedicated to his position as class president, he played on the school's football team. He was the starting nose guard during his senior year and contributed a great deal to the success of his team. He played an important role in the team becoming the Eastern Massachusetts Division II State Champions.

Jeff also enjoyed mechanics and spent a lot of time repairing and tuning up automobiles. If you ever needed some advice on cars, you could ask Jeff. In the future he hopes to pursue a career in mechanics.

But aside from all of his activities and commitments, Jeff was a fun loving and sensitive person at heart. His warm personality and good sense of humor made him an enjoyable person, and a good friend to spend time with. All of the positive qualities Jeff possessed served him well at WHS and will most definitely lead him to great success in the future.

The Artistic Humanitarian

"Art makes me look at everything differently. It makes me see clearly, and makes me appreciate my eyes. I never enjoyed looking at things as much as I do now."

Stacey Smith first became interested in art in the Creative Art Workshop at McCall Junior High. She said that she had never thought about being an artist before the eighth grade. When she was accepted into the class, it opened up a new world for her.

In high school Stacey continued with art by taking courses there, and at Boston University. The summer before her junior year she participated in a six week Boston University Summer Course. There she took classes in painting, photography, figure drawing, and print making. Despite the long hours and hard work, Stacey found it challenging and well worth it. But her artistic drive did not end when the summer did, for she took an Honors Course at B.U. that met on Saturdays during the following school year.

Not only did Stacey's peers recognize her artistic ability, but so did the public. She received two Honorable Mentions from the Boston Globe Scholastic Art Contest. Stacey's work was also exhibited at the Winchester Public Library as part of a collection from the high school.

Stacey's favorite medium to work with was anything she could get her hands on. She said that at times she went through a "frustrated phase" where she did not like anything she produced. She did not have a favorite subject matter, preferring to draw a variety of different things. "I don't think I'm developed enough as an artist to focus on one thing."

Although her primary goal in life was to help others, Stacey was undecided about her plans for the future. Only if she could somehow combine art with helping others would she pursue art as a career. Otherwise, she felt she would not be doing her "job." Photojournalism was a possibility she entertained because she wanted to publicize the evils of the world.

Despite being uncertain about her future plans, Stacey certainly made her presence felt during her years at Winchester High. she had a myriad of interests and participated in many activities including the environmental group Reaction, the girls' swim and track teams, and the German Club. She was also the President of Curtain and Cue, and the Business Manager for the Red and Black. Stacey also lent her talents to the high school theatrical productions during her four years at the high school. She appeared in "Godspell," "Leader of the Pack," "Guys and Dolls," and the dramatic thriller, "The Lights Are Warm and Coloured."

Stacey had a deep sense of obligation to the community and she hoped she could someday improve the world even if it meant leaving art behind.

Roll Over Beethoven!

Chances are that if there was anything going on at Winchester High School even remotely related to instrumental music, you would find Kristen Herlihy.

Kristen's interest in music began with clarinet lessons in fourth grade. Since then, not only did she continue to take clarinet lessons, but she began lessons in the saxophone as well. She focused on her favorite musical styles, orchestral and jazz, and became a devoted fan of both Bernstein and Gershwin.

But to Kristen, the best parts of music were "the places I go and the people I meet." Kristen's talents have brought her to many musical groups. She was a member of the Winchester High School Marching Band, Wind Ensemble, Concert Band, and Pit Orchestra for four years. She was a member of the Orchestra as well, and was a drum major for two years. Kristen believed that Mr. McCann and Ms. Miller, who conducted these school groups, had a profound impact upon her development as a musician. Said Ms. Miller of Kristen, "She is a fine musician with wonderful qualities. It is a pleasure to have her as a student."

Kristen's musical activities also extended beyond the high school. She was a member of the Massachusetts Youth Wind Wnsemble for five years, and was part of the Northeastern Massachusetts District Band and Orchestra for six years.

Kristen somehow managed to combine all of her musical endeavors with the rigors of a difficult course load, and a varitey of extra-curricular activities. She was a member of the track team, the Latin Club, and was tri-captain of the girls' swim team. And through it all, she maintained the wonderful sense of humor that made Kristen who she was. After all, in the words of Phoebe Goodwin, "Kristen is the epitome of cuteness and talent, laughter and tunes."

The years he has lived seem but a moment, a breathing space in the long march of humanity. Already he hears death calling. With all his heart he wants to come close to some other human, touch someone with his hands, be touched by the hand of another. If he prefers that the other be a woman, that is because he believes that a woman will be gentle, that she will understand. He wants, most of all, understanding.

During her four years at WHS, Alison Hoffnagle was a major presence on the theater scene. She was a member of the Curtain and Cue Drama Club each year in high school and led the club as its president during her junior year. As a sophomore, she stage managed and assistant directed "Godspell." As a junior, she assistant directed and stage managed the high school productions of "The Ground Zero Club" and "Guys and Dolls." Yet Alison was not merely a behind-the-scenes theater person. She appeared on stage in the WHS productions "Leader of the Pack," "Rags," "Fame," "And Stuff," and "The Ground Zero Club." She also represented Winchester High School at the Shakespeare Competition in the spring of 1990.

Alison's time was not, however, only devoted to theater. As a senior she was the president of the German Club and Alison said that she enjoyed theater at Winchester High because it gave her a chance to "not only learn more about theater itself but to work closely with a group of great people." When asked about the future, Alison said she was not sure exactly what she wanted to do, but she hoped to combine theater and the humanities with travel abroad. But whatever she decides to do, it will without a doubt be interesting and exciting.

Senior Year... WOW! Those of you who were fortunate enough to experience the full brunt of its effects certainly know the feeling. Homework, sports, plays, clubs, work, college visits and applications; seniors were always bustling about, desperately trying to keep up with their various commitments. Rarely could someone be found who was involved with every activity and able to achieve in every one of them. But among the ranks of the class of 1991 of Winchester High was a person who did just that. That person was Brittanny Boulanger.

Determination and hard work were the qualities that stood out most in Brittanny. She challenged herself both in and out of school. She consistently took the highest level courses available to her and achieved in every one of them. In her senior year, she took on the burden of four AP courses, a truly admirable feat. Brittanny's diligence certainly paid off, earning her the rank of eighth in her class.

Aside from her studies, Brittanny was also involved in many extracurricular activities. She was a member of Student Union in each of her four years at WHS, and served as vice-president of her class for two years. During her senior year, she was also a member of the SAC. She was an active member of the French Club, Drug and Alcohol, and the environmental group Reaction. She was a peer counselor and contributed to the school newspaper, the Red and Black.

Sports were integral parts of Brittany's life. She enjoyed a variety of sports including skiing and running. But of all the sports she played, soccer was her primary choice. Brittany was the captain of the girls' soccer team which was ranked the number one team in the nation in 1990. It also won both the Middlesex League title and the State Championship with an impressive record of 24-0-0. But behind the honor and glory of the championship team lay years of determination and hard work. Since her freshman year at WHS, Brittany was a member of numerous select teams: the Massachusetts State team, the District team, and the Olympic Development Program. She traveled internationally with teams in Belgium and Holland. For the future, Brittany hoped to play varsity soccer in college.

Track was another sport in which Brittany committed herself to excellence. She ran track each of her three years both in the winter and spring, and qualified for States every season. During her junior year, she was a Middlesex League All-Star and set the school record for the Triple Jump.

"Whether in the classroom or on the athletic field, if you do not commit yourself 100%, you will not achieve success. Anything you start should be finished, and finished right or it is not worth doing." Brittany truly lived up to her words and displayed the highest level of determination and hard work. That was what Brittany Boulanger was all about, and it was these qualities that set her apart.

The Master

There have been many excellent students at WHS, but only an elite few have had as much scholarly depth as Yuharn "Didi" Chen. Rarely does a student possessing Didi's raw brilliance and hard work ethic come along.

Didi's academic record was spotless. He took a total of six AP classes in his high school career and succeeded in all of them. He cleaned house at Awards Night in the spring of 1990, picking up the Rennselear Medal for Math and Science, the Harvard Book Award, and department awards in History, Math, and Science. In addition to those accolades, Didi was named a National Merit Scholar.

Didi's extracurricular feats matched his exceptional academic achievements. A Red and Black staff writer, a drug and alcohol counselor, a National History Day winner, and math team member, he was a study in versatility.

A superb athlete, Didi was a cross-country captain and league all-star. He also participated in winter and spring track on the varsity level. Running became a fort of personal therapy. "Sometimes the pressure and frustration of homework get so overwhelming that I go out and run to calm myself down."

But things were not always that easy for Didi. When asked about his Junior High School career, he cringes, calling it "a most horrifying experience - the dark ages of my life." Although he performed well in all of his classes, French posed some difficulties. Calling it his most despised class, Didi admitted "I'm not a language man."

However, Didi overcame these obstacles, surpassing his peers on all levels. His paper route job earned him a $5,000 scholarship for college. His summers were filled with study, thought, and fun. The summer after his sophomore year, he attended Exeter, taking courses that ranged from Physics to Speechmaking. Said Didi about that summer, "It was best learning experience."

As for his future, Didi was torn between being a mercenary, a chemist, and a marathon runner. Judging from his past record of balancing prowess and his mental and physical ability, Didi will have no problem excelling in all three of his aspirations.

Comes the Dawn

After a while you learn the subtle difference
Between holding a hand and chaining a soul,
And you learn that love doesn't mean leaning
And company doesn't mean security,
And you begin to learn that kisses aren't contracts
And presents aren't promises,
And you begin to accept your defeats with your head up and your eyes open
With the grace of a woman, not the grief of a child,
And you learn to build your roads on today
Because tomorrow's ground is for uncertain plans.
And futures have a way of falling down in mid-flight.
After a while you learn that even sunshine burns
if you get too much. So you plant your own garden
And decorate your own soul.
Instead of waiting for someone to bring you flowers.
And you learn that you really can endure...
That you really are strong and you really do have worth.
And you live and learn... With every good-bye you learn.

"Mike Bett is definitely dedicated to causes he believes in. He works hard to achieve high goals," said Lorette McWilliams of her classmate. She was not alone in looking up to Mike; he was known to many students, teachers, and members of the community as a dependable guy who could take control and get a job done.

Mike was interested in politics and devoted a lot of time in pursuing his interest. The first incident Mike (known to many of his friends as "Joe") remembers of having an interest in politics was in second grade. His class was voting on the Reagan vs. Carter election. Although he did not admit who he voted for, he admitted to finding pleasure in casting his first ballot.

As President of the Student Union, Mike planned great things for the school. He wanted to make the Union one that spoke with a loud, strong voice. He said, "the student government has to be listened to." In his senior year, the Student Union was run with a new organization to make it as powerful as Mike felt inspired to make it. Even in the fall, while the school year was still young, Mike was busy fulfilling expectations as to what a strong President should be.

"Mike Bett is one of America's finest young people deeply rooted in the best of American historical tradition," said history teacher Mr. Maloney. He continued, "Mike is a young Republican of great integrity and has a knowledge very advanced for his age."

Mike was a proud member of the Young Republicans. It was founded by William O'Leary, and had an original membership of fifty people. Mike was proud to be one of the first to join.

But Mike did not spend his entire high school career immersed in politics. In fact, in the fall, one was forced to trek onto the golf course to find him for he was a very proud member of the mighty WHS Golf Team. In both winter and spring he was on the track team. Mke also wrote for the Red and Black, and belonged to a variety of clubs.

Mike looked fondly to former President Ronald Reagan. He held a great deal of respect for this fellow leader. Mike also placed his family high on his list of people of importance. He was grateful to them for filling him with the values of hard work. "I guess it has made me a better person."

Where will the future take Mike? After attending college, he planned "to take on corporate America" and then perhaps he will be seen on the political scene.

When you're down and troubled and you need a helping hand and nothing is going right close your eyes and think of me soon I will be there to brighten up even your darkest night

If the sky above you should turn dark and full of clouds & that old north wind should begin to blow keep your head together and call my name out loud soon I'll be knocking upon your door

Ain't it good to know you've got a friend
People can be so cold
They'll hurt you and desert you
They'll take your soul if you let them
Don't you let them

Just call out my name
you know wherever I am
I'll come running to see you again

Winter, spring, summer or fall all you have to do is call and I'll be there
You've got a friend"

'ODE TO THE CLASS OF '91'

AS I SIT HERE AND CONTEMPLATE
MY YEARS AT WINCHESTER HIGH,
I TREASURE THE FRIENDS I'VE MADE
AND HATE TO SAY GOODBYE.
IT SEEMS LIKE ONLY YESTERDAY
WHEN WE MET ON OUR FIRST SCHOOL DAY
WE WERE ALL NERVOUS, SCARED, AND CONFUSED,
BUT WITH THE HELP OF EACH OTHER
WE MANAGED TO PULL THROUGH.
WE MADE NEW FRIENDS AND GREW CLOSER EACH DAY
ENJOYED GOOD TIMES AND LAUGHTER EACH STEP OF THE WAY.
WE'VE BEEN THROUGH SO MUCH TOGETHER
IN BOTH GOOD TIMES AND IN BAD
TOGETHER WE GREW CLOSER
DURING TIMES WHEN WE WERE SAD.
THE TIMES WE SPENT TOGETHER
WE THOUGHT THEY'D NEVER END
LIVING FOR EACH DAY
THAT WE SHARED WITH ALL OUR FRIENDS.

NOW THE TIME HAS COME
WHEN WE HAVE TO SAY GOODBYE
CHERISH OUR TIME TOGETHER
NEVER LET THESE MEMORIES DIE.
ALWAYS REMEMBER THE GOOD TIMES
WE'VE HAD THROUGHOUT THESE YEARS
AND NOW AS WE BID FAREWELL
TRY TO HOLD BACK THE TEARS.
FOR BECAUSE WE WERE SO CLOSE AND FRIENDSHIPS NEVER DIE,
I KNOW OUR TIME APART WILL QUICKLY PASS US BY.
BUT IF BY CHANCE YOU LEAVE
AND NEVER COME BACK HOME,
TAKE WITH YOU THESE FOND MEMORIES
WHEREVER YOU MAY ROAM.

AND AS WE GO OUR SEPARATE WAYS,
UNAWARE OF WHAT LIFE HAS IN STORE,
THE KNOWLEDGE AND THE FRIENDSHIPS WE HAVE GAINED WILL LIVE FOREVERMORE.

GOOD LUCK CLASS OF '91!!
